

Supporting Information for

Genomic perspectives on human dispersals during the Holocene

Mark Stoneking, Leonardo Arias, Dang Liu, Sandra Oliveira, Irina Pugach, and Jae Joseph Russell B. Rodriguez

Corresponding author: Mark Stoneking

Email: stoneking@eva.mpg.de, mark.stoneking@univ-lyon1.fr

This PDF file includes:

Figures S1 to S5

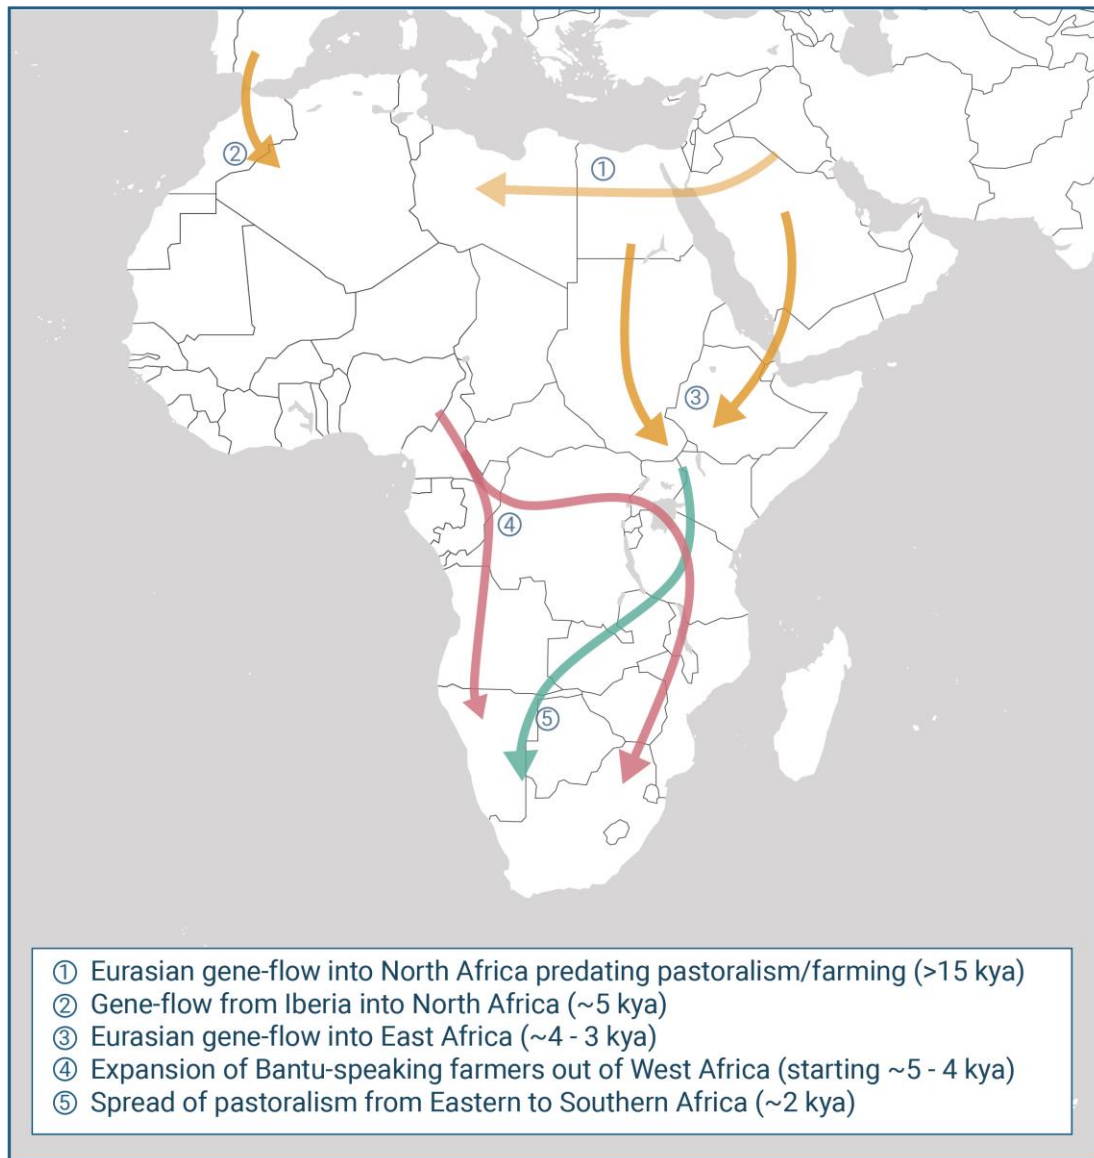

Fig. S1. Human dispersals within and into Africa. The map shows only dispersals discussed in this review, with the arrows roughly indicating the direction of spread.

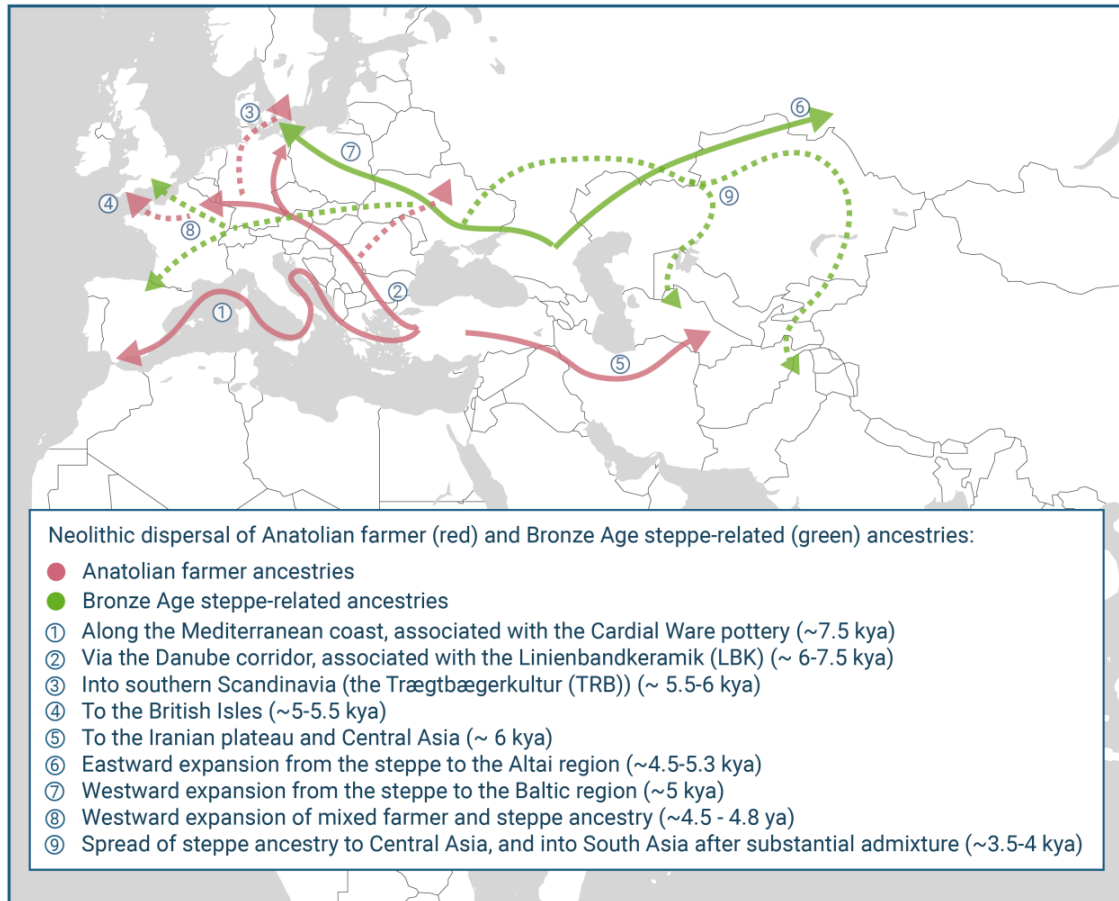

Fig. S2. A summary of Neolithic and Bronze Age dispersals into Europe and Central and South Asia that are discussed in the text.

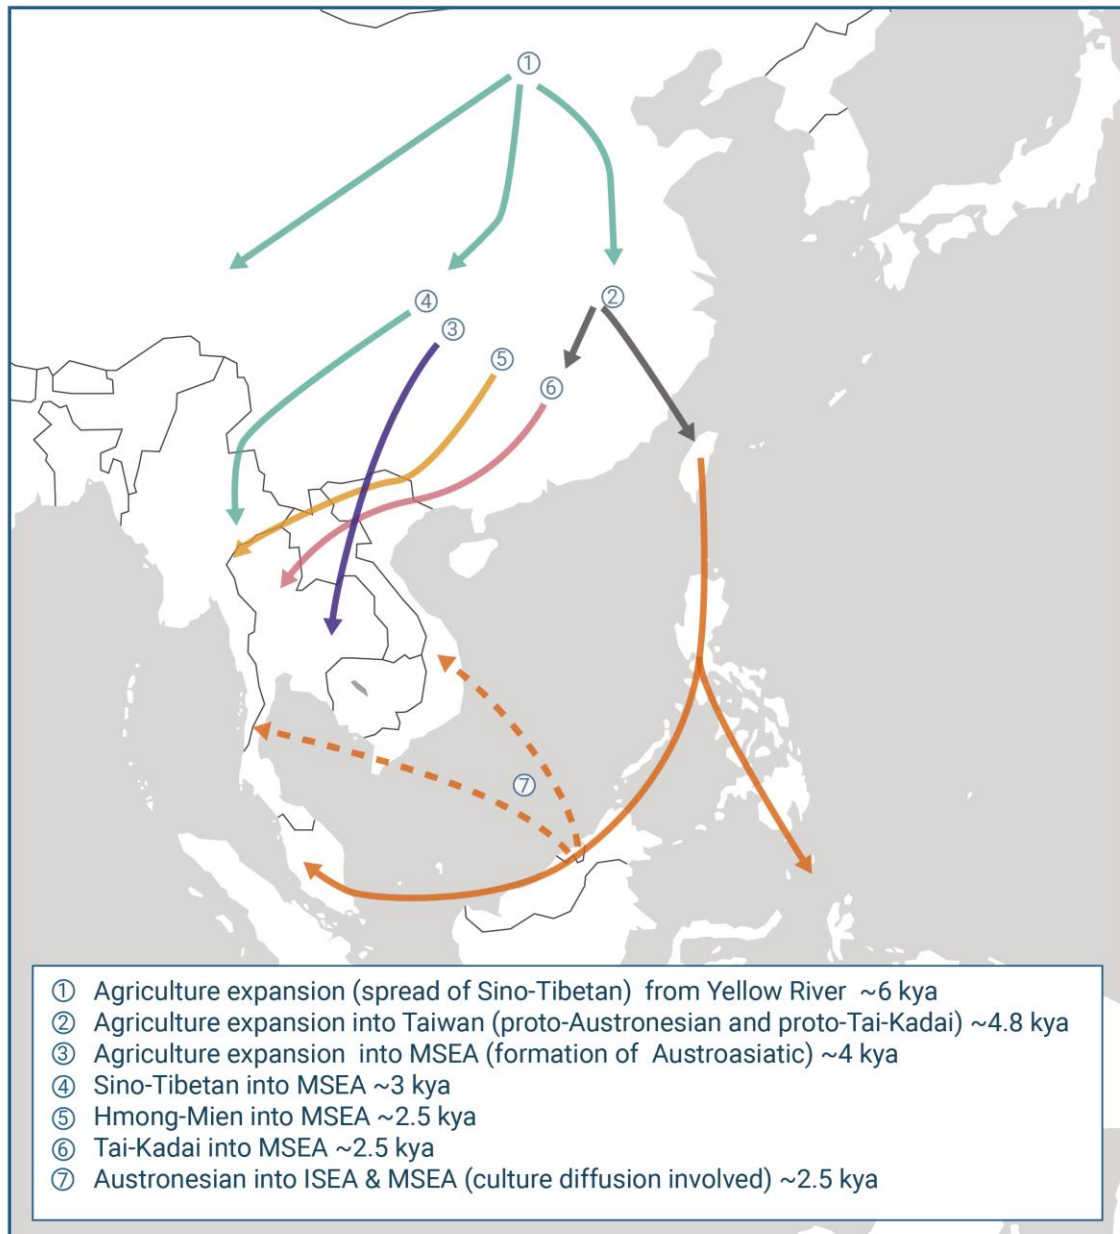

Fig. S3. Major Holocene human dispersals in East Asia and Mainland Southeast Asia discussed in the text.

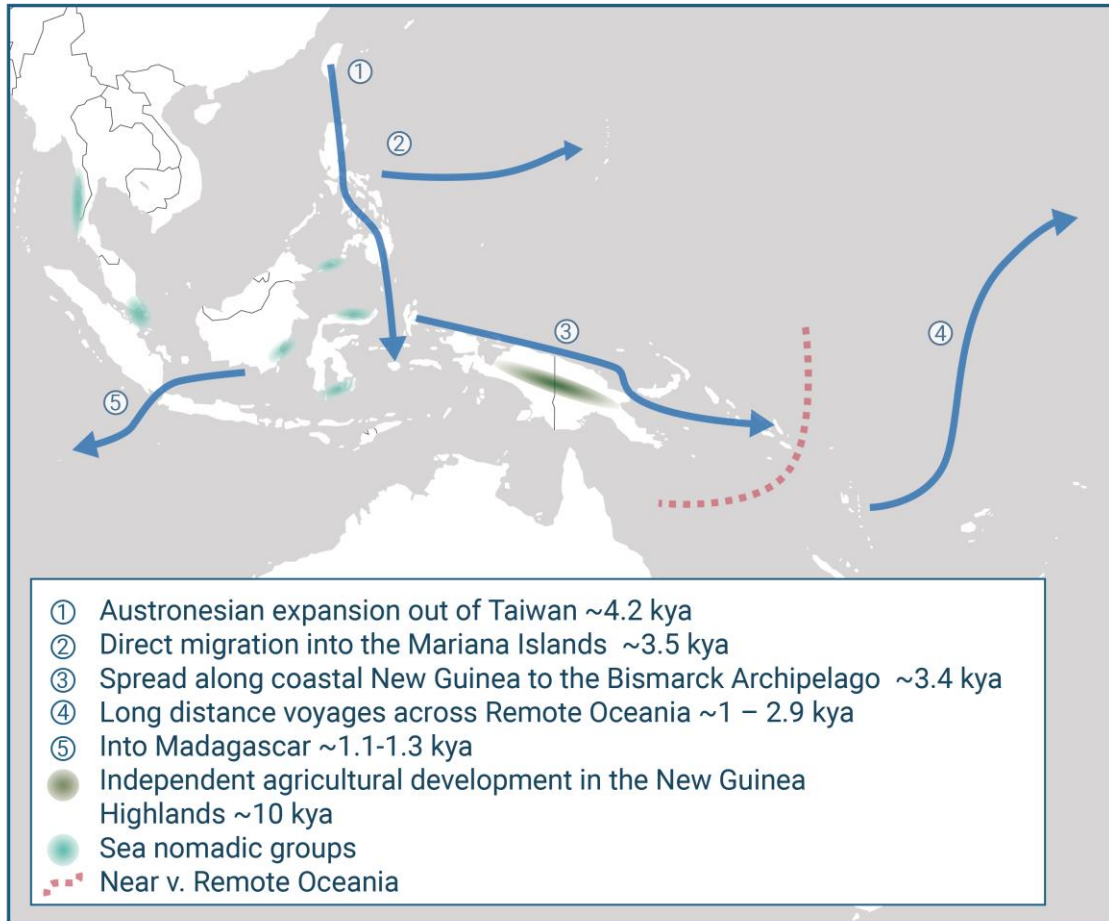

Fig. S4. Human dispersals and subsistence developments in Island Southeast Asia and Oceania discussed in the text.

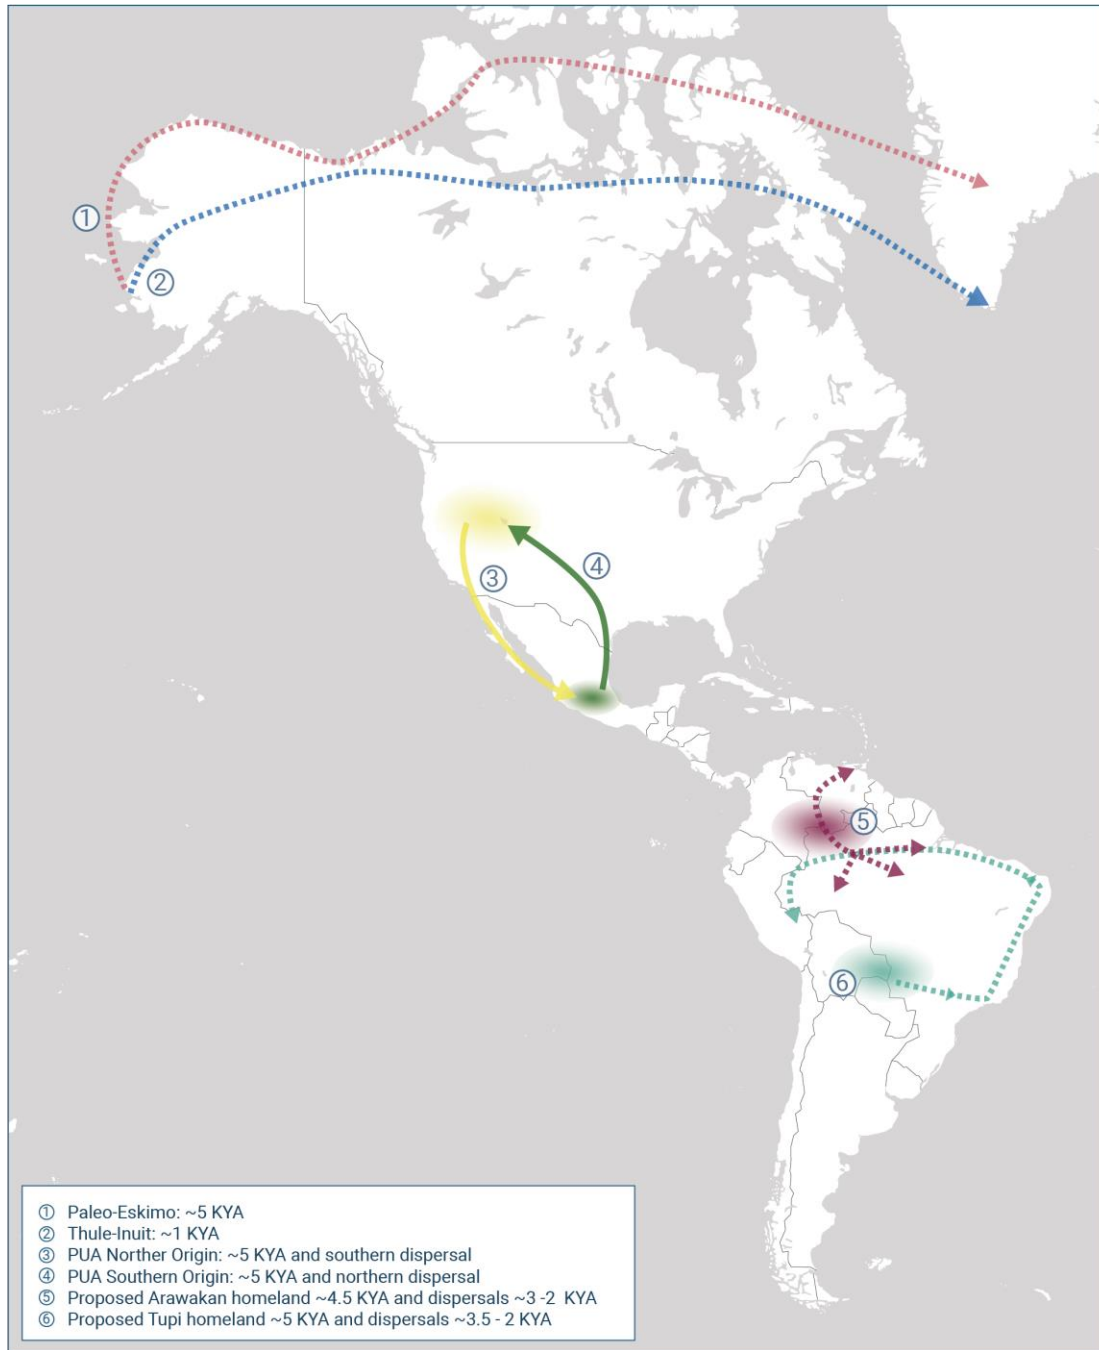

Fig. S5. Major Holocene dispersals in the Americas discussed in the text.